

Present Figures For Registration Reach New High

2927 is Grand Total Without Music

DECREASE IN ARTS

Increases in Household Science, Commerce, and Grad School

Complete and final registration figures issued yesterday for all the departments of the University, including Macdonald College showed substantial increase over former years, notwithstanding the high percentage of failures in the Matriculation Examinations last June and the raising of the requirements for entrance to first year Medicine. The total number of students enrolled at McGill is 2927, while those at Macdonald number 389, giving the University a grand total of 3316 students for the session of 1929-30. Faculty of Music figures are alone lacking.

The Faculty of Arts as usual leads all the other departments of the University with 1028 students enrolled, but even this high figure is somewhat below the registration in this faculty last year. Medicine, the second largest faculty in the University, failed to attain last year's mark by four students, having only 468 against 473 last year. Last year's mark of 473 could easily have been surpassed had all the applicants for entrance into first year been accepted. Scores of applications had to be turned down due to lack of accommodation, only 100 being allowed to enter.

Figures Same

The Library School and the Department of Pharmacy are the only two departments at McGill to have the same number of students registered as last year, the former having 18 and the latter 22. Encouraging increases are shown in Law, Commerce, Architecture, Social Workers, Graduate Nurses, Macdonald College and the School of Graduate Studies and Research. The very noticeable increase in the last mentioned department in (Continued on page four)

Dr. Chipman On Medical Ethics

Will Address Musical Society on Monday at 8 O'Clock

Dr. W. W. Chipman, former professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology, who recently tendered his resignation to the University, will address the McGill Medical Society on the subject of "Medical Ethics" on Monday, November 18th in the Assembly Hall of the Medical Building. The meeting will commence at 8 o'clock.

"Dr. Chipman has not spoken at a meeting of the Medical for several years, and as his subject is of such interest and importance to medical students, an unusually large attendance is expected on Monday evening," said C. C. Clay, Secretary of the Medical Society yesterday.

Before the address, a case report will be presented by Mr. Gordon Copping, and at the close of the meeting refreshments will be served.

The McGill Medical Society claims to be the most active undergraduate society on the Campus.

Gila Monster Reappears To Shatter Prevailing Rumor Concerning Disappearance

Of late, there has been a rumor about the College that a lizard which was brought here many years ago had disappeared. A trip to the Biological Building, however, revealed the fact that the lizard is "alive and kicking." Although the fact is known to very few, this reptile has been here for 20 years. It was brought about 1909 by a McGill graduate, from Arizona. It is about 50 years of age, and is expected to live about one hundred years more.

This lizard is also known as a "Gila Monster." There are two species of lizards: the Tirolodroma and the Tirolodroma. The Tirolodroma is found in Mexico, and the Tirolodroma is found in Arizona. The local specimen belongs to the latter species. Its name means "A Horrible Bearded-skin Poisonous Lizard." As

Stu Hungerford To Play At Next Informal Friday

Stuart Hungerford and his Orchestra will supply the music at the Union House Informal next Friday evening according to an announcement of the Union House Committee. The same Orchestra played at the first Informal on the 19th of October, which was very well attended.

Mrs. W. Vaughan and Miss Best of the R. V. C. will act as the chaperones for the evening. Mr. Corder, who operates the Union Cafeteria, will be in charge of the catering. As at the previous Informal, lunch will be served in the cafeteria style.

Tickets are now on sale at the Tuck Shop and in the various Faculties at $1.25 per couple. If the next Informal is as popular as the last one, it is likely that the tickets will be sold within a few days.

Directory Out In Three Weeks

Lack of Co-Operation Has Caused Delay

NUMBERS CHANGED

Fraternity and Phone Numbers Will Appear in Front

The students' directory is in the hands of the printers and will be issued within three weeks, according to a statement made by E. H. Johnson, of the Students' Council last evening. Except for one change the appearance and price of the book of addresses and phone numbers of students will be the same.

Lack of co-operation from the students and the fact that many phone numbers have been changed during the summer, have handicapped the compilers in their work. The card system used last year was discontinued this fall, with the idea of relieving the students of inconvenience on the day of registration. However, this has led to an enormous amount of work, and it is probable that the card system will be resumed next year.

When the students' directory is issued, students will notice, that the numbers of the offices and fraternity houses, usually on the back page, have been placed on the first page, along with the addresses and phone numbers of the different buildings on the campus.

The directory will be sold for ten cents, as started last year, and will be in the hands of the vendors of the buildings and the Tuck Shop in the Union. This will not entirely cover the cost of printing, but will relieve the Students' Council of a large part of the expense. The cost of setting up the type is undertaken by the university, and the bill for the printing and paper is paid by the council.

Snooker Tournament

Will those players who did not complete their games in the first round of the snooker tournament please report at the Union by 12 o'clock to-day to arrange matters, in order that the tournament may go on. Otherwise they will be scratched from the list.

Bureau Offers Work For Any Graduate

Faculties Co-Operate to Find Work for Applicants

FREE SERVICE

Organized Plan in 1920—More Positions Than Men to Fill Them

Any graduate or past student who desires a temporary or permanent position may obtain one through McGill University, Mr. G. B. Glasco, executive secretary of the Graduates' Society stated in an interview yesterday. Although the society is the nominal head of the employment bureau for graduates, with the different faculties in an advisory capacity, applications are often handled by the faculties themselves.

The bureau was organized in 1920, and since that time has done a considerable amount of work. From time to time items referring to the bureau and its work are printed in the "McGill News," the official publication of the Graduates' Society. Sometimes circular letters are sent out to certain graduates notifying them of positions vacant in which they might be interested. Recently twenty-two graduates in electrical engineering were sent communications in which an opportunity to apply for a good position was offered to them. This is an indication of the extensiveness of the work of the bureau.

Development Possible

This service for graduates could be developed to a greater extent if it were not for a few difficulties. In Mr. Glasco's opinion, the bureau is often only duplicating the work now being handled by the separate faculties. There are more positions than men to fill them. If the organization were developed, it would benefit the employers, not the graduates. There are not sufficient funds to enlarge the department.

The Graduates Society of McGill was organized to keep those who have left the University in touch with fellow classmates and developments (Continued on page four)

Chess Men Win Signal Victory

Gain Admittance to Group "C" of City League

Harmonia, Que., Nov. 15.—A fierce battle raged madly for two hours at a meeting of the Montreal Chess League, held last night at the Harmonia Club. Beer was tanked furiously, and cigars puffed madly, as the question was debated: Should the League admit the McGill Chess entry into "C" division after their secretary Hyman Shapiro had ignored their ultimatum that their application must be filed by November 1st, and in fact, had told them that McGill would not enter the league?

With that imperious calmness with which Neptune quiets the stormy seas, the McGill delegates, Max Garmoise, and Cyril E. Schwaberg, both of Law II, lulled the tempest with a wave of the hand, and a lordly gesture.

They pointed out Shapiro's incapacity to decide aye or nay for the McGill Chess club since the latter had left McGill last June and was in no way connected with this year's club.

To the argument that the League should have been informed earlier, since to admit McGill now meant an entire rearrangement of their schedule, it was incumbent upon the McGill delegates to ignore the first point, and to show that the existing schedule was in any case faulty in the extreme and very much in need of rearrangement.

The League succumbed, congratulated the delegates, and acceded to their request that McGill matches be run off earlier than others.

The first match is to take place in the McGill Union, on November 23rd, at 8:15 p.m. The visiting team is from the St. James Chess Club.

Nickle Nurses

Philadelphia, Pa. — (AP)—"Nickle nurses" may apply be substituted for "frosh" as the cognomen for freshman co-eds at the University of Pennsylvania this year.

Under rules laid down by the sophomores the first year girls must constantly have at least three nickles on hand to pay fines for breaking freshman rules.

Principal Returns

Sir Arthur Currie, the Principal, returned to his desk yesterday afternoon for the first time since his recent illness. During the last few days Sir Arthur has been seen walking about the Campus and yesterday returned to the University looking greatly improved.

Izzie Aspler To Be At Prom

Sale of Tickets to Juniors Only Ends Today

PROGRAM CONTEST

Admission Will be Free to Designer of Winning Cover

Izzie Aspler and his eight-piece orchestra will provide the music at the Junior Prom in the Windsor Hotel on December 13th, according to an announcement of the Prom Committee. Izzie Aspler, of Arts '29, is well known to McGill students as an orchestra leader. His orchestra played in previous years at various student social functions and at the Jazz Tans in the Cafeteria. It is also announced that the Windsor Hotel will reserve tables for large parties desiring them. Favors of a novel character are planned for the occasion.

Today is the last day that the Juniors will have preference on Prom tickets. For three days the sale of tickets has been restricted to Juniors only, and so far only about two-thirds of the number available have been purchased. On Monday, however, Sophomores and Seniors will be able to buy tickets.

As announced in a previous issue of the Daily, the Junior Prom Committee is making the competition for the dance program cover an open affair instead of assigning the job to one person. The prize at stake is a ticket to the Prom to the designer of the winning cover, whether man or woman.

The scheme is to be Futuristic or, if the competitors are more conservative, Modernistic. The design should symbolize "College Dance". The Committee prefer that the designer stick as closely as possible to the three colors, red, white, and black. Designs may stray from this stipulation with moderation.

It is hinted that it would be advantageous to take advantage of the Futuristic scheme and depart, if necessary, from the traditional oblong shape, but designs must be practical. Designs need not be of any particular size, since they can be reduced or enlarged to suit.

Designs must not be handed in later than 12 noon, Monday, November 25, to Mac Kalman, Architectural Drafting Room, Engineering Building.

Campus Life To Be Featured In Annual

Department May be Classified by Faculties in Year Book

Biography forms for the McGill Annual which were due from the Seniors yesterday, are coming in steadily to the office. The necessary number of forms has been given out and filled in ones have been steadily coming in during the last few days. Seniors have been going to Notmans single daily during the hours 9-10 in the morning and 5-6 in the afternoon to get their individual portraits.

The Annual Board hopes to enlarge this year "Campus Life", the section devoted to intimate snapshots of college celebrities and Campus activities. It is the aim of the Board to live up to this feature as much as possible, and to this end students who have photos which they think suitable for this department are asked to get in touch with a Board member. If enough snaps are forthcoming, they will be grouped in pages according to the faculties from which they come.

Freshman Ushers

About 25 ushers are required for the game today when Westward plays R.M.C. Will those men who were ushering on the concrete stand make a point of being at the field at 1:30 p.m. and if unable to attend kindly arrange to send someone in their place. The game starts at 2 p.m. sharp.

Scotch Sense Of Humor Much Maligned, Claim

Dr. Scott Pearson Defends His Countrymen

OLD PLATITUDE

No Surgical Operation Needed to Help Scot See Joke

That the old platitude "It requires a surgical operation in order that a Scotchman may understand a joke" is not true, was the verdict of Dr. Scott Pearson, Professor of Church History and Homiletics in the Presbyterian College, recently from Scotland, at a public gathering in the Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul last evening, during a lecture entitled "Scotch Humour." At the close of the speech a program of Scotch music was given.

Dr. Pearson opened his lecture by making clear that the inability of Scottish people to understand a joke is only apparent. It is due to the fact that there is no real humor in many anecdotes, but where there is humor, the Scotchman can smile inwardly.

Jokes Explained

Continuing his address, which was for the most part an exhaustive compilation of Scotch stories, the lecturer pointed out the sources of Scotch humor. In the first place, much was based on the reaction of the unsophisticated Scotchman to sophisticated surroundings. A Highlander coming down from the hills into civilization furnished a good illustration. Thinking in one language and speaking in another was another source of humor—a person of the Gaelic type speaking English. Again much humor originated in one's being unable to appreciate the humor of his own speeches and deeds. In this connection he spoke of a certain man who was invited out to dinner. The man made reply to the invitation by saying, "I can't; I have no nightgown." "Of course," said Dr. Pearson, "He meant he had no evening dress."

Can We Conquer Unemployment?

E. Forsey Answers Question for Laborites

Following his policy of last year in having outside speakers address the club on alternate weeks the Labor Club will, on Tuesday next, hear Eugene Forsey of the Department of Economics at McGill and former Rhodes Scholar, on the question "Can We Conquer Unemployment?" with special reference to the situation in the English coal mines.

As the situation now stands in England, the miners are asking for a seven hour day at the same pay as for an eight hour day. The employers, however are offering a seven and a half hour day at reduced wages. A. J. Cook, the leader of the mine's almost withdrew his support from the Labor Party and the question is still undecided.

The meeting will commence at 8 o'clock; after the address the election of officers will take place. A temporary committee consisting of Carl Bergtholm, Phil Matthews, Albert Marcus, and Edward Klesch has reorganized the club; and they expect to repeat the success which the club enjoyed last year.

As in past years, the club will follow its policy of having outside and student speakers address them on alternate meetings. Last year such prominent speakers were heard as: Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate in the United States presidential elections a year ago, J. S. Woodsworth M. P., and William Irvine M. P. The committee hopes to have men, equally prominent in the labor world, speak this year.

Course of Sermons

With a record of two previous successful series of lectures delivered here, Rev. John McCleary, of the Jesuit Order of Detroit, is about to begin at St. Patrick's a course of nine sermons. His series will deal with the Life of Christ with two concluding discourses on the Resurrection, "The Royal Feast" and "The Perpetual Presence."

Father McCleary will open his series next Sunday morning, November 17th at the 11 o'clock Mass, continuing Sunday evening and each evening of the following week.

Religion And Business Life Before Forum

"Is religion only practical on Sunday and irreconcilable with the daily grind?" This question will be considered tomorrow by The Rev. Father P. Bryan at the Columbus Forum. Another Montreal Forum for young people, that of the Y.M.C.A., will begin its winter session shortly.

The Rev. Father Bryan's lecture will be entitled "Religion and Business" and will take place at 3 p.m. in the Knights of Columbus building. It will be followed by a musical programme. This is the second meeting of the season, the series having started last Sunday.

The Y.M.C.A. Forum will not begin until after the New Year. The date for the first meeting is set for the first Sunday in January. No definite arrangements for a speaker have yet been made.

Chamber Music In Moyse Hall

Conservatorium String Quartet Plays Tomorrow

FOURTH RECITAL

Series of Concerts is Under Auspices of Faculty of Music

A programme of chamber music will be rendered by the McGill Conservatorium String Quartet in Moyse Hall tomorrow evening, at 9 o'clock. This concert is being held under the auspices of the Faculty of Music.

The programme follows:—

1. Quartet in A Major....Mendelssohn
- Adagio
- Allegro Vivace
- Adagio Non Lento
- Allegretto con Moto
- Presto
2. (a) Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes....(Old English—arr. by Alfred Poehon)
- (b) Vivace—from Quartet in D Major No. 67.....Haydn

First Violin...Mr. Maurice Ouderet
Second Violin...Mr. Eric Zimmerman

Viola.....Mr. Harry Norris
Violoncello.....Mr. Jean Belland
This recital is the fourth of its kind. Previous artists have been Claude de Ville, Harry Norris, Walter Clapperton, and Mr. Herschorn. The recital a week from tomorrow will be given by Mr. Clapperton. Maurice Ouderet, a member of the quartet playing tomorrow night, will play the week after, followed by a piano recital by Paul de Marly. This series will culminate on December 15th with a programme of Christmas Carols.

Varsity S. P. S. Riot

March Triumphantly Up Yonge St.—Police Interfere

Toronto Nov. 15.—Down town Toronto was the scene, last night, of a triumphal march of 500 Varsity Science students making merry after the Annual banquet at the King Edward Hotel. So great was the enthusiasm that the police were called upon to stem the exuberance.

Eight of the students were placed in custody by police and taken around the corner to West Dundas Police Station. After being questioned and lectured by plainclothesmen, the eight effervescent youths, very much subdued, were allowed to leave the police station. Last night's disturbance is a repetition of a similar one exactly one year ago, upon an identical occasion, the annual banquet of the School of Practical Science.

Library School Forms Exhibit Of Children's Books

Mrs. Mary Duncan Carter Broadcasts on Radio

LARGE COLLECTION

Two Courses in School Deal Exclusively With Books for Children

Will children's books in the foreground next week, McGill is exhibiting a special selection of them in the Library under the direction of Mrs. Mary Duncan Carter, assistant professor of Library Administration and assistant director at the Library School, who will also broadcast a talk on the same subject.

The special exhibition will be a comprehensive one, dealing with various classes of children's books. There will be in the first place a large majority of the books included on the list compiled by Mrs. Carter, Miss Emma L. Jenkins, Children's Librarian at the Westmont Public Library, and Miss V. M. MacEwan, Librarian of the Boys' and Girls' Library at the Fraser Institute, a list distributed in pamphlet form to the members of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers of Quebec at their recent convention in the Mont. High School. Practically all these books are in the possession of the Library and will be on display next week.

One section of the exhibit that will be of national interest will include all the children's books of merit published in the Dominion during the past year. In another division a number of old text-books in use years ago, will be placed alongside modern school texts as an interesting comparison. A few books which deal with the general subject of children's books as a study, methods of teaching and modern advances in the work, will also be on view.

Public Attention

The exhibit will bring further to the attention of the public the work the Library has been doing in this direction. Some five years ago the first (Continued on page four)

Salts React In Liquid Ammonia

K. Buxton, M.A. Reads Paper to Chemical Society

"Reactions in Liquid Ammonia Solution" was the subject of a paper delivered before the Chemical Society, yesterday afternoon, by K. S. Buxton, M.A. Mr. Buxton is a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in the department of Chemistry. He has done research work on reactions in liquid ammonia solution.

Typical chemical reactions of double decomposition and displacement in liquid ammonia said the speaker, are possible although sometimes these are the reverse of those which would occur in aqueous solution due to solubility relations; for example silver chloride and barium nitrate are both soluble and react to precipitate barium chloride.

The phenomenon of ammonolysis, analogous to hydrolysis is not very marked and compounds like aluminum cyanide which cannot be prepared in aqueous solution are stable in liquid ammonia. Many new compounds have also been prepared such as a series of acids and bases derived from ammonia instead of from water.

The solutions of alkali metals in ammonia were dealt with at length. Very concentrated solutions have as high a conductivity as such metals as iron. The reducing power of alkali metals so dissolved is also very great and many interesting reactions especially with organic compounds have been carried out.

There was a large attendance at the meeting, a total of thirty new members from the Graduate School in Chemistry and in Physics were elected to membership. This large enrolment demonstrates the growth of graduate studies in these departments.

Catholic Students Of McGill

On Sunday morning next, November 17th at 9:30, a special Mass will be held in the Lady Chapel of St. Patrick's, 454 Dorchester St. West, for the Catholic Students of McGill. At the communion breakfast which will follow Mr. E. A. Ryan, a McGill graduate and a prominent Engineer of Montreal, will deliver a short address.

AS CANADA GROWS —

LAST JUNE Colonel Bovey addressed the McGill Graduates of Ottawa Valley on the topic "McGill grew up with Canada." When two identities grow up together they are complementary and the action of one influences and modifies the other. The two of them together also imbibe of the feeling of the world and as they stand today they should be similarly complementary.

It was at the beginning of the last century that the developments which had had their effect in Europe were making their debut in Canada. The only means of communicating between the two continents was by water and as the vessels changed from sail to steam so Montreal, and therefore McGill, being at the head of navigation of the St. Lawrence influenced by carrying trade, changed for a progressive industrialism.

To the south of the border there was at that period a population of some four million. Universities there were in a similar condition as the ones here. Today the university population in its tens of thousands is in proportion to the mighty growth of civil population. McGill has grown in proportion with the population north of the border, even though there are larger areas of population south of the border, nearer than those of the West, which one would assume would have had an influence upon her.

Where life is in a civilized community there must be doctors, and McGill has helped Canada to grow up in that respect. As the need for teachers has grown in the community, McGill has supplied them to Canada. The Canadian Houses of Parliament cannot show a large proportion of college graduates among its numbers but of those who have acted in a legislative manner McGill has contributed its quota. Canada's mineral sources need to be developed and the engineers of McGill have contributed their share. The woodlands of the north country hold great potentialities and McGill has accommodation for their development. Commerce has caused the urban districts to shoot upwards and the commercially minded men find McGill a good educational ground.

By far the biggest impetus in Canada today, and one which has built up the East as well as the West, is the wheat-farming and in this McGill has yet to grow up.

Dean Ira MacKay has described Canada as a highway. True this is, for Canada can be considered as a belt of land about two hundred miles wide, which joins the Atlantic and the Pacific. There is the means of the East meeting the West in world relations. McGill has housed students of all nations. Various opinions are pooled and from it McGill grows, just as the two hundred mile belt is growing wider as men press further north.

McGill has always been independent of government control. She has grown by herself and by the aid of those financial helpers who have been located in Montreal and in the Province of Quebec. We have grown as Montreal has grown. To many Montreal is Canada, yet we resent it when we are called conservative.

The influence upon Canada has not always come from within or from British sources. How large is the influence upon Canada from our neighbours south of the border. How large is the influence upon McGill from the same source.

BLIND SEARCHERS

ONE of our geology professors has affixed the title "Blind Geologist" to the student who goes out on excursions without carrying a hammer for chipping rocks. And aptly so, for such individuals are placing barriers in front of opportunities for real vision of the subject.

Unfortunately, such slipshod tendencies of certain geology students are to be found among those studying other subjects. Too few of us set out to discover and reveal new aspects of the studies in which we are supposed to be interested, which after all contradicts the idea of a university—a search for truth, a search for something which cannot be observed on the surface.

The student of English who does the assigned work and swallows whole whatever the professor says, but does no analysing and picking apart for himself the Economics student who reads about the labour problems but who does not go to some district where he may view the actual all these are hopelessly blind as searchers for truth.

This weakness of ours to sit back and let our professors do our thinking for us is dangerous, and leads to stagnation more quickly than most of us realize. For the spirit of the hunt, which makes our blood tingle, and gives us a sense of our opportunities as students, is altogether too rare.

We enter the race, and at the sight of the first golden apple, we stop; the search is ahead but the apple is here. But here we stay, crooning over the beauty of our prize so easily won.

Too often we are like so many savages, who seeing an automobile for the first time, do not know what to make of it. Yet they never think to come closer and examine the mechanism and try to reason out the why and the wherefore. What if they fail to find out? Is not the search for truth and knowledge worthy even if only partially successful?

The THEATRE

The One-Act Plays

NOW that the Players' Club have opened our local dramatic season, it would seem incumbent on a well meaning but lazy dramatic critic to commence grinding out the weekly budget of bright and pungent comment on things theatrical. I feel also that the maiden appearance of the newly elevated "Coroners Court" (vide p. 3), official organ of the Sports Department, deserves notice and congratulation in the form of immediate emulation.

In the present condition of the professional stage the wide spread interest being manifested in the form of numerous amateur societies is an encouraging sign. The phenomenon is noticeable all over the continent. In Montreal there must be 20 clubs in various stages of advancement, of which at least a half dozen have progressed beyond the stock-modern-farce stage. In this latter group it may be truthfully said that our Players' Club ranks high.

The introduction of the one-act play system is a step that has practically been forced by the expansion of the Club, both in numbers and in the standard of their productions. Paris in major productions cannot be taken by inexperienced players, and even if they could there are not enough such parts to go around except in such pieces as the "Insect Play," some five or six years ago when the Club was young and had few good players, and fewer facilities for staging their efforts, the one-act play was the only suitable medium. With better times, however, it was somewhat neglected, until now it is revived, largely as a training ground for the major productions.

It is not only actors that the club needs—capable directors are even more necessary. It is, or should be, the aim of the Club to make itself entirely self-contained with respect to actors, directors, technicians, and business experts, of which the second is undoubtedly the most important and by far the most difficult. The Club has in the past done well with outside directors, whose work has been greatly appreciated, but there is no doubt but that men—and women—capable of directing and producing a complete play should be trained. It is hardly necessary to add here that the one-act plays furnish an excellent means for this training. With everyone connected with each play starting practically from scratch, as it were, much can be learned in the course of the month or so necessary for preparation.

With this perhaps long and unnecessary foreword let us examine the first two offerings of the season.

THEIR faults were generally speaking, those expected of beginners: nervousness, awkwardness in the disposal and motion of various parts of the body, missing and slowness in picking up cues, imperfect diction, and most important of all, lack of proper timing. Lines were spoken at uniform rate which at times became extremely monotonous. This and the accompanying lack of expression can be traced, I think, to weak direction, and also to a large extent, of the hesitancy of beginners to lose themselves in their part, to really live it, to let go of their everyday selves. It is form of self-consciousness which the expression of a few parts of various kinds can remove.

On the other hand, not a little real talent was revealed in both plays; it needs only polishing up to show good results. The costumes and scenery were particularly good. The costumes in "Hunger" showed evidence of careful thought and not a little imagination, while the settings for both plays provided an excellent example of what can be done with a few simple pieces of scenery and some curtains. Very little could of course be done in the way of elaborate lighting and staging, but even if the plays had called for such, it is doubtful if it would have been more effective than that actually used.

"HUNGER" was an unfortunate choice of a first play. It is so simple a piece—simple in both senses, perhaps—that very subtle characterization is necessary to give it life. Even then, in the hands of experts I doubt whether it would be much more than ordinary, rather dull "mortality" play.

Outstanding in this play was Albert Lapin as the Beggar. Lapin's main trouble is to refrain from moving about when on his feet. It seems to be due to nervousness. His characterization and stage presence were very good. The rather difficult part of the Poet, played by Seymour Wener, was criticized by some as being done in too effeminate a manner. It is largely a matter of taste or judgement; the part undoubtedly did call for an interpretation somewhat along the lines given. Wener could have spoken more clearly. John Porteous, playing the Man, hungry for fame, was rather too stiff and military in bearing and speech. He seemed to have difficulty in putting expression into his lines and in disposing of his hands. Felice Darling as the Girl, handled another difficult part in a creditable manner, although the fine shadings and emotion and expression seemed a little beyond her at times, and she betrayed herself by nervous movements of the eyes and head. The old man, played by Samuel Pollard, quite as convincing a character as one might have wished; the fault lies more in the play than the interpretation.

"THE Dreamy Kid" by Eugene O'Neill was a far superior vehicle, and to that extent an easier play to produce. The superb ending, in fact the whole construction, but especially that ending, show the hand of a master craftsman and an artist, which O'Neill certainly is, even though

A COLLEGE READING ROOM.

Nominally there exists in the Arts

Library a reading room; but not of such a character as to lead anyone to walk over to the Library for the purpose of seeing any of the antiquated files of such interesting reading as the Journal of Education and kindred publications which cover its tables.

But perhaps the table of the Reading

Room, as applied to it, is somewhat misleading. The purpose for which the room is intended is this: In winter the library is too cold to allow anyone to consult the books on its shelves, and indeed, at all times it would not be convenient or expedient to allow free access to it,—and this smaller room, which is called the reading room, is used for a reading room for the books which are in the library, not for the papers which are on the tables. In fact, as the name is generally used, it is not reading room at all.

It is hardly necessary to say much in favour of a reading room 'per se'.

The advantages are apparent to all,

and in McGill the students, by force of circumstances would be led to use it more than they do in other colleges.

Nearly every class, on some days of the week have to spend spare hours—that is hours which intervene between lectures, and which the student now generally fills in any way the caprices of the moment suggest. We are confident that if there was a reading room it would be used at such times, and in those intervals between college hours; for instance, many science students remain at the college from twelve to two and they would be only too glad to have the opportunity of passing those long hours in a pleasant room where an abundance of periodical literature would be at hand to afford instructions or to give relaxation from their studies. It is not our intention to say anything more on this part of the question; the instances cited above are only two of the numerous ones which will be suggested to the mind of every student, and we shall now show that, to us at least, the project is perfectly feasible.

The college subscribes for a number of periodicals now, the reviews and several scientific and technical periodicals. Our exchanges, too, would be at the service of such a reading room; and a very small subscription from each man in college would be sufficient to procure all the leading periodicals of Britain and America. We are inclined to think that the faculties, judging from the cordial manner in which they have met our proposals of the pact. Would do everything in their power to aid our project; and it only remains to give this suggestion an actual existence, concerted and immediate action on the part of the students, and we trust that a meeting will be called, and subscriptions collected before the first week of the term goes by.

Varsity And Queen's Meet Today In International Final At Kingston

1929 Edition Of McGill Senior Hockey Ready

Hook Up With Columbus in Q.A.H.A. Opening

ST. GERMAIN BACK

Canadiens Play Victorias to Complete Double Bill on Monday Night

The 1929 edition of the McGill Senior hockey squad will make its debut at the Pomme next Monday night when they take on the fast-travelling Columbus team in the second game of a double-header staged by the Senior group of the Quebec branch of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Now that the rift has been healed with regard to the status of amateur hockey in this province, and since last week's tussles between Canadians and U. of M. and M.A.A. and Columbus, are merely being regarded as exhibition tilts by the governing body of the Q.A.H.A., then hostilities will be officially resumed in the Senior Group this coming Monday. Canadians, composed of former members of the St. Francois-Xavier club last year's runners-up in the Allan Cup playdowns, and a new entry to the Senior Group taken on Victorias in the first battle of the evening.

Since the rivalry between the various clubs is high, keen and closely-contested games are anticipated as well as a fine display of amateur hockey. Although it is not a McGill home game nevertheless a large crowd of local students is expected to be on hand in order to lend their support to the fighting red team. Reports from practices lately announce the red squad as a formidable entry in the Q.A.H.A. Senior Group, but the injury jinx is still hovering around the McGill camp.

Maurice Powers will most likely get the call for goal while Captain George McTeer stellar defenceman will be out of next Monday's game due to a knee injury sustained on the gridiron. His place will ably be filled by Hutchins a newcomer to senior ranks who showed up well in interclass hockey last year. Bert McGillivray who has seen action on the red senior squad before will be at his old position once more.

Coach Walter Small, well-known in local sporting circles who is looking after McGill's hockey interests this year, announces a strong forward line. Ralph St. Germain, ex-captain and chief mainstay of former red and white senior squads has been going great guns of late and will be at his old position at centre. He will be flanked by Tommy Robertson on the right and on his left by Russell Ward, both members of last year's sextet. This comprises the forward line, which has been working together for two years now and should give a creditable showing of themselves on Monday next.

The sub line is composed of first string men in Farquarson and Grangers, forwards and Jack Dinan, who has been Bishops with an enviable record as a puck-chaser, on the defence. Irwin Klein, of Law rugby fame, will do relief work at the net. Doherty was out at yesterday's practice but his knee is still bothering him a little and will not allow him to play against Columbus. Lovering and Kritzinger will in all probability make their appearance in the near future, and will indeed bolster the red squad.

All in all, McGill's chances in hockey honours this season look good, and when the intercollegiate games with Varsity roll around early in the spring, a vastly superior red team than last year's will face the blue and white for the silverware which now rests at Hart House, Toronto. George McTeer and company are determined to do the trick this season, and it looks like the next resting place for the intercollegiate silverware will be in the Union.

Arts Juniors Held Basketball Practise

J. Katz to Lead Quintette in Inter-Class Series

A very impressive turnout was noticed at the first basketball practice of the season held by the Arts Juniors in the High School gym last night. Among the newcomers there were several exceptional performers who looked as though they would make a strong fight for regular berths on the squad.

Last year the Juniors lost their sectional championship owing to a disqualification, but are determined to make good their contention that they are second to none in the class basketball series this season.

Bert Costello, captain of last year's quintette again turned out with the players at practice and judging by his

Hockey Captain

George McTeer, captain of the McGill senior hockey sextette who will be unable to start against Columbus on Monday owing to football injuries.

Interest Turns To Basketball

Progress Being Made by Candidates at Cage Practices

HAYDEN PROMISING

Good Supply of Material for Both Senior Basketball Teams

With the football season over, attention is slowly being directed to the candidates who are trying out for positions on the two senior basketball teams which will represent McGill this year. There are over twenty men on the McGill roster and these are the select remains of a large squad which turned out earlier in the season.

Steady progress is noticed at practices which are being held in the High School gym on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Many of the players look to be in the pink of condition and are showing much more confidence in their performances.

Bob Calhoun, veteran McGill guard was out watching the lads do their stuff at practice yesterday. Calhoun is still suffering from an injury to his side some time ago and will probably not be seen in uniform for another week. Don Young and McBroom are busy with their studies but are expected out shortly.

The old reliables, Faulkner, Small, Feigenbaum, Rice, Hayden, and Sellar were out in force and showing their wares in fine style. Faulkner and Small are working in well together and displayed some snappy passing in scrub games.

What looks to be the surprise of the year is the excellent form which Hayden, a real veteran of the McGill court game who has been absent from the team for some years, has been showing at the workouts. It will be remembered that Hayden was a star forward three years ago, and should he show a repetition of the style which formerly carried him to such great heights, it will mean a great deal to the McGill quintette.

Moore, the newcomer from the University of Minnesota, has been tried out at centre and although still a little erratic handles his position creditably. He is a fast man and is of good height, enabling him to handle passes to advantage. Erskine is another who has been favorably impressing the fans who watch the practices from the sidelines. This snappy player has an abundance of speed and can handle himself well on the floor. The experience gained playing with the Engineers should stand him in good stead this season.

In Stewart, the lanky Ottawa cager, McGill has some strong support for the defense. There are a number of others who look promising, Dougan, Wilson, Price, Hammond and Ross.

There is still another month of practice before the intercollegiate games make their annual trip to the states to play American college teams in exhibition tilts. With present circumstances looking favorable and four weeks of steady work, Coach Van Wagner's proteges should be able to give a good account of themselves against the cagers below the border.

pre-season work should be able to ward off any opposition for a regular berth on the forward line. Margolick, another veteran forward is back for another season's work with the Juniors and will probably pair with Costello on the front line.

Shuster, Rubin, Cohen and Aronovitch all showed fairly good form at practice and are fighting it out for the forward positions.

Jack Katz, captain of the Arts Junior basketball team this season will be remembered for his excellent displays at the guard position last year. George Bercoff is managing the team.

Both Teams At Full Strength For Title Game

Record Crowd Expected to Witness Fight for Championship at Kingston

EVEN CHANCES

Record Crowd for Richardson Stadium

Advance reports from Kingston point to a record attendance at the Queen's-Varsity struggle for the intercollegiate crown which takes place this afternoon in the Richardson Stadium. Following fair weather conditions earlier in the day yesterday the heavy rainfall of last night turned the field into a sea of mud and should this weather continued the attendance will probably be affected to some extent.

(Special to the Daily)

Kingston, November 15.—The Queen's senior football squad following a week of steady practice are in excellent shape to tackle Varsity tomorrow for the Intercollegiate Championship, and though not overconfident the players are all in fine spirits and ready for the fray.

The early sunshine today gave promise of a record attendance for tomorrow's game but the heavy rain-fall which started this evening has turned the Richardson gridiron into a sea of mud. Although fair weather is predicted for tomorrow the field will no doubt be heavy and this should favor the heavy Queen's line which shows up well in the muddy going.

There was no heavy workout today, but the squad went through a short signal drill in fine order. The halves remained on the field after the drill and engaged in kicking the ball about.

Every member of the team is in a happy mood and though not overconfident, the tricolor feel that they can turn the tables on Varsity. The heavy field is considered by many to be a lucky break for Queen's to use its lines to advantage.

There has been a rush for tickets all week and should the weather prove favorable tomorrow, it is predicted that a record crowd will pack the Richardson Stadium to witness the football classic of the season. A large number of supporters are accompanying the Toronto players and the Blue machine can hope for plenty of support from the sidelines.

Toronto, November 15.—The Varsity seniors left for Belleville today, where they will rest overnight before continuing to Kingston for their championship battle against Queen's tomorrow afternoon.

The Blue football machine will be at full strength and are fully prepared for the task which faces them in the Limestone City. Ronnie McPherson, the Varsity football mentor did not assign any heavy work yesterday, but had the backs kicking and running back the kicks. The line-men spent some time in practicing interference and the wings were engaged in blocking and tackling. Twenty-two men were in uniform for the final workout.

A feeling of optimism prevades the Queen City and though the tricolor are reported to be in the best of shape and confident of victory the locals feel that Varsity's performance last week was not a mere flash in the pan and that they have even chances of repeating their success against Queen's tomorrow.

There was no definite lineup given out, but the following players are expected to line up for the Blue and White: Keith, snap; Harrison, flying wing; Sinclair and Bell, halves; Wood at quarter; Bean and Kelly, insides; Morgan and Little, middles; Gooderham and Subosits, outsiders and Stewart.

With both teams anxious to obtain titular honors the record crowd which will probably fill the Richardson Stadium are assured of seeing one of the finest football battles in years. Extra bleachers have been brought from Montreal to Kingston and a gang of workmen were kept busy getting them set up at the Stadium.

Sculptor Is Visitor

Dr. R. Tait MacKenzie on Leave From Pennsylvania

Dr. R. Tait MacKenzie, Director of Athletics at the University of Pennsylvania was a visitor at McGill yesterday. He is a former graduate of McGill and a well known resident of Montreal. Dr. MacKenzie is at present enjoying a year's leave of absence from the University of Pennsylvania and when he returns will connect himself with some department of the University other than the Department of Athletics. Dr. MacKenzie is widely known as one of Canada's foremost sculptors.

Coroner's Court

Now that things have settled down after the rugby season it is time that we resorted to the old custom of former sports editors of the McGill Daily namely dedicating something and after all what could be better than to elevate the now famous Coroner's court to the full glory of two columns and replace the ancient Down to Brass Tacks. It is as well that the dedicatory ceremonies were held over till today as something appeared to take place on the sports page yesterday that will undoubtedly bring forth favourable comment from the editors of College Humour.

No real column is complete without its hall of fame and for the first candidate we nominate the printers who so ably produced the sports page Friday morning. May they live long to bask in the full glory of their success.

After a great deal of argumentation pro and con the senior group situation has come to a successful termination—the St. Francois-Xavier club has released its players and the Q.A.H.A. has taken the outlaws back within their jurisdiction.

THE HOCKEY SITUATION
All is now calm and peaceful on the former turbulent hockey sea, that is at least for the present, and to those who were in doubt as to the possibility of McGill having a senior hockey team it can be said that matters are now arranged and the first game of the season takes place on Monday night when the red and white sextet hooks up with Columbus.

In the meantime we note with pleasure that Mr. Elmer W. Ferguson, of the Montreal Herald, has once more revived his favorite theme and is again handing out eulogiums on the sportsmanship of college rugby teams and their freedom from the baneful influence of the gate receipts. With the option of playing on either the Varsity or McGill gridirons the college officials elected to lose for it and with the result that the location of the big game today is in Kingston where a much smaller stadium will have to cater to the needs of the sporting public. No wonder the Carnegie Institute can find little to cavil at in its report on the condition of college athletics throughout the States and Canada.

Today the eyes of the sporting world are focused on the Limestone City where Queen's and Varsity will fight it out for the supremacy of the intercollegiate union. Both teams have indulged in the hardest week of practice to date. Reports emanating from the rival camps are filled with confidence and nothing can break in on their individual optimism but with the advantage of playing at home and before a frantic home town crowd the Tricolor carry a certain inexplicable advantage into today's struggle. McPherson's blueboys have played some of their best games in the Presbyterian lair and from all accounts it should be a struggle to the death with Sinclair and Carter in the leading roles. Neither squad has been able to cross the other's line through the medium of straight line plays and it remains to be seen as to what the breaks have in store for both teams.

Soccer Gossip

The match scheduled for the Second of this afternoon against MacDonald College Eleven has been postponed, but next week the winners of the Arts-Commerce-Medicine match will go to St. Anne to play the Farmers there.

Both Science and Theology are out of the running for the Interfaculty title. Arts-Commerce tops the league with four points, with Medicine close behind them with three points. Theology has one point whilst Science have none to their credit. The play off will take place on Thursday when Arts-Commerce and Medicine meet, the winners playing MacDonald College.

The members of the Senior team, who have not already done so, are requested to hand in their sweaters as soon as possible at Hay Finlay's office. They are also asked to get their gear all cleaned up in preparation for the picture for the Annual next week.

The Interfaculty League standing is as follows:

	P	W	L	D	F	A	P
Arts-Commerce	2	0	0	1	0	4
Medicine	2	0	1	5	3	3
Theology	2	0	1	2	3	1
Science	2	0	2	0	1	3	0

Tragedy Averted As Car Crashes In Ditch

Driver Asleep at Controls Believed Cause of Accident

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 15.—James A. McCullough, Meds. '30, suffered a fractured thigh, serious in nature, last Thursday night when the car in which he was driving plunged over a culvert into a ditch pinning himself and his companion Frederick W. Bowers underneath. The latter received minor cuts about the head.

The young men were driving along the York Road from Napanee and were approaching Kingston when it is believed, McCullough fell asleep and lost control of the car. The accident resulted in injuries to both. At first Bowers was thought to have a serious fractured skull, but the injury was found to be bad cuts.

They were soon discovered and rushed to the Hotel Dieu Hospital for treatment when X-Ray revealed the serious thigh fractures received by McCullough. The car was battered in front and was brought to the city by a wrecking machine.

Both students are progressing well, Bowers having left the hospital.

He is unique in his position as a sculptor of athletic studies; he brought back the idea of the Greek style in portraying every muscle under stress and strain and being an anatomist he is one fully qualified to do this sort of work.

Westward Play R. M. C. Today

Montreal's Last Hopes for Title at Stadium Today

Montreal's only hope of a football championship will either be boosted or fall by the wayside this afternoon when Doug Kerr's Westward Intermediates meet the Royal Military College at Festival Molson Stadium.

The Westward team has been particularly impressive this season, holding two victories over Sherbrooke, and a decisive victory over the hard-fighting C.N.R. gridirons. The Maroons did not lie back on their laurels but were put through a gruelling week's preparation and to judge by the way the men were doing their work, the Cadets will be forced to the limit to win.

In the last three years, Doug Kerr, the Maroon coach has groomed a team into fine shape and has steadily improved his coaching system in spite of the set-back which intermediate rugby received when M.A.A.A. entered the Big Four. Westward Intermediates have forged ahead and overcome considerable obstacles to arrive where they are today.

Charlie Doyle will again be forced to stay on the bench since his injured superior form on the line this season the Sarnia Imperials seem to have the edge in the backfield and as a result the fans should be treated to a close and exciting battle this afternoon.

shoulder has not recovered sufficiently to permit him to play. The Westward backfield will probably be composed of "Red" Adams, Kenny Copland and Johnnie Coghessy. Coghessy has been an important factor in Westward's successful performances this season and his kicking is again expected to prove a boon to the Maroons.

"Bud" Homer, captain of the team will handle the signals while Gormley will look after the snapping duties. Charlie Szabo, hefty Westward linesman although busy with his work has been out every spare moment this past week and is all set for some steady plunking on the Army line.

Bennett and Donihoe are two other linesmen who can make their weight felt on the offensive. Robbins and Dionne complete the lineup. The substitute line carries Joe Magnan, Clarke, Smith, Kerr, Patterson, Senior, Martin and Bently.

New Generation Forum Subject

J. Dugdale, English Journalist to Speak Tomorrow

"The New Generation in England" will be the subject of John Dugdale, a prominent young advocate of the Youth Movement in England, at the People's Forum to-morrow evening at 7.00 p.m.

Mr. Dugdale, at the age of 22 has twice been asked to stand for the British Parliament. Graduating in 1926 from Oxford University, where he took honors in the school of Philosophy, Politics and Economics, he went immediately to Peking as Honorary Attaché to the British Minister to Peking. He was in Peking all through the revolutionary period of December 1926 to November 1927, working as a cypher officer.

In November of 1927 Mr. Dugdale became correspondent to the London Times on the Yangtze River in central China. He was then responsible as correspondent for an area extending from Shanghai, on the coast to the borders of Tibet. He travelled up the river on a British gunboat and was the only newspaperman present during the negotiations concerning the capture of Captain Lalon, a British subject. During this time Mr. Dugdale met many of the leaders of Modern China, including the President Chiang Kai-Shek.

He returned to London via Japan and Honolulu, thus encircling the globe. In London he worked for a time in a settlement in the slums and was later appointed to the editorial staff of the London Spectator, the leading weekly paper of England.

Last March Mr. Dugdale came to this continent on a special mission for the London Spectator. While he wrote weekly articles for this publication, he recently collected a series of articles which are now appearing in the Spectator under the title, "The Younger Point of View." In addition to his work for The Times and The Spectator Mr. Dugdale has written from time to time for the Manchester Guardian and the New Statesman.

As an interpreter of the new England Mr. Dugdale has a message of great appeal and striking significance. During his last visit to America he came into contact with many of the political and literary leaders of the country. All who have met him have been impressed by his comprehensive knowledge, his charm of manner, and the force of his personality.

Scotch Sense Of Humor Much Maligned, Claim

(Continued from page one)shire, was then made. In speaking of Aberdeen he said, "The funniest thing about this place is the fact that so many of the typical Aberdeen stories were invented there." Concerning the meanness of Aberdonians, he denied the charge and said they were the most generous people in the world. Life is full of humorous incident and tale, while Ayrshire is the best place of all, according to the Professor.

Children Will Hear Story Of Sky Today

Dr. A. V. Douglas Speaks in Hall of High School

(Continued from page one) "Birds, Beasts, and Giants of the Sky" will be the subject of a lecture by Dr. A. V. Douglas in the assembly hall of the Montreal High School this morning at 11. The talk will deal with those wonderful figures of ogres, gods, and animals which the vivid imagination of the Ancients fashioned from constellations.

This is the second of a series of four lectures held by the Department of Extra-Mural Relations on popular subjects, which are made all the more popular by supplementary lantern slides. Though adults are admitted they are held primarily for school-children, as was the series last year on "Wonders Through the Microscope."

The first lecture of the series was given a week ago by Leslie R. Thompson of the Faculty of Applied Science on "Ships and Shanties."

First Lecture By Professor Waugh Tomorrow

"France Five Hundred Years Ago" will be the title of the lecture by Professor W. T. Waugh, head of the Department of History, to-morrow at 3 o'clock in Moyses Hall.

This is the first of a series of 3 lectures held under the auspices of the History Department, commemorating the 500th anniversary of Joan of Arc's victory over the English. The second and third lectures will be respectively: "Joan's Mission and Triumph in 1429;" and "Joan's Capture, Trial, and Death." These will be held on successive Sundays.

The lectures are free and the public and student body are invited to attend.

Beit Fellowship Forms Available

Winner Goes to London College for Two Years

Application forms have been received at the Registrar's office for the "Beit Fellowships for Scientific Research." These Fellowships are available for two years at the Imperial College of Science and Technology, South Kensington, London, England, and are open to men and women students who hold a degree in any faculty. Complete information can be had from Dr. J. A. Nicholson, the Registrar.

The Beit Fellowships for Scientific research were founded and endowed by Otto Beit, of London, England in 1913 for the promotion of the advancement of science by means of research. The election of fellows will take place about the 15th of July 1930 and not more than three Fellowships will be awarded. All applications must be received by the middle of April, 1930.

The tenure of a Fellowship shall be for two years, valued at £250 per annum. The second year being subject to a favourable report to the Trustees at the end of the first year by the supervising Professor. The trustees may if they see fit suspend or remove any Fellow from his Fellowship.

Applicants for Fellowships, must abide by the following conditions:

- (i) Every Fellow shall be a man or woman, who at the date of election shall have taken a degree in any Faculty in any University of the British Empire approved by the Trustees.

Library School Forms Exhibit Of Children's Books

(Continued from page one) display of children's books was arranged and offered in the university building. But active work in this field of library activity was not commenced until three years ago when Mrs. Mary Duncan Carter came to McGill. Keenly interested in this work and eminently qualified to direct it, Mrs. Carter has developed local interest that has brought and is continuing to bring most beneficial results.

Two courses are at present offered in the University Library School which have to deal exclusively with children's books; both are given by Mrs. Carter. The first, on "Children's Reading," aims to develop an approach to children's literature through a consideration of children's interests and activities, to become acquainted with the classics suited to children, as well as with recent children's books; and to suggest methods of presenting literature which children enjoy and, at the same time develop their ability to appreciate good books. This is accomplished by means of lectures on child psychology and to the selection of children's books and illustrations of them as well as by the reading and presenting of different types of books, which are always considered from the viewpoint of inclusion in a children's library. This is fundamental work, which is intended to develop leaders qualified to direct the trend of children's reading.

Second Course In the second course, "Library Work with Children," consideration is given to the aims of this work; to make good books available to all the children of a community; to train boys and girls to use the library with discrimination, and to build character and develop literary taste through the medium of good books and the influence of the children's librarian, and the best way in which these aims may be accomplished. Problems considered include how to stimulate interest in the organization of a children's librarian, the qualifications of a children's librarian, equipment and administration of children's rooms, personal work with children and the way in which environment and social differences and background affect children in relation to their reading.

Mrs. Carter has always been active on children's books. Displays, lectures, and articles have been her work in this connection. It is Mrs. Carter's hope that the interest which has been stimulated will be maintained.

Present Month Promises to Exceed Normal Quota

The month of November promises to "go over the top" as regards rainfall if the second half of the month is as wet as the first half. Statistics at the Observatory show the total rainfall to date this month lacks but one half inch to complete the normal quota of three inches.

There is still a foot of snow to come if this month falls in line with the average November. The present month is very irregular in its snowfall, some 36 inches being recorded in November in 1886 but less than an inch 10 years before. These figures represent the two extremes.

There is no ground for the contention that the winters are becoming shorter or milder, the observatory officials pointed out in commenting upon the comparatively mild weather for this period in the year. Statistics show that the coldest year in the history of the observatory was experienced in 1921. The next coldest year was in 1878. The mercury dropped to the 40 mark last night after recording a high of 44 degrees yesterday. There was little change in the temperature today but there is expected to be a drop tonight followed by rising temperatures tomorrow.
